If you have created a file called "controlpanel.. the first time you use a serial or usb monitor. A: It is simple to connect a serial terminal to your microcontroller. To do it you can use the Arduino UNO or any other standalone microcontrollers board with AT45DB2T, a chip on which the serial communication is controlled through the 10 bit I2C bus. The module is very cheap. and you only need a 6 pin VCC (avg. to 2.1V), 9 pins for TX and 8 for RX to control the chip. What you have to do is that in your sketch, you must type in the configuration code for your chip which is AT45DB2T. This is what you can do (and, you may get your compy to board for $15): // setup pins -10 = VCC, 8 = RST, 2 = XTALOUT, 1 = TX, 0 = RX // all other pins as output void setup() { Serial.begin(9600); pinMode(0,OUTPUT); pinMode(1,OUTPUT); pinMode(2,OUTPUT); pinMode
